Summary

I am a third-year student at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, Poland, with a passion for web design, application development and artificial intelligence. My student journey is complemented by practical experience gained through internships and work in the technology industry. During my internship at M3 Group, I worked as a web designer (WordPress) and application designer using FlutterFlow, where I perfected my skills in building user-friendly and responsive web solutions. I am currently working part-time and am looking for a full-time job.
